Regardless of what you want to achieve at your job—or in life—it requires communication to get it. Whether you’re answering the phone or giving a big speech, you present your ideas and yourself in every interaction. Top notch communication skills mean top notch presenting. When you’re working one-on-one with a client, commenting in a team meeting, delivering a sales pitch, or presenting to thousands at a gala event, you MUST excel at presentation skills to make an impact.

Attend Hanging on Every Word and learn:

- The difference between a good presentation and a kick-ass presentation
- How to get people to listen and take you seriously
- How to own the room in any situation and with any audience
- How to stay calm, cool and collected under pressure
- The number one thing every audience wants from a presenter
- ... and more!

Sari de la Motte is a nationally recognized presentation coach, speaker, and trial consultant. She has trained extensively with an internationally recognized authority in nonverbal communication and is an expert in nonverbal intelligence. You can learn more at: saridlm.com